Visitor Guidelines

Lalgola Raj Kali Bari is the temple of Chaitanyamayi (Shrinkhalita, “the chained”) Rajeshwari Maa Kali, established in 1813 according to the temple signboard. It stands in the Rajbari precinct at Lalgola, Murshidabad district, West Bengal. These guidelines will help make your visit easy and safe.

Darshan timings

- Puja, bhog and aarti are held every day according to custom. Exact timings will be announced soon.
- On Amavasya, Purnima, Kali Puja and special tithis, timings and crowds may change. Please check the Schedule page on the website before you set out.

Booking a seva online

- Open the “Seva & Donation” page on the website and choose the offering.
- Enter your name, gotra, mobile and village/town; for marriage or annaprashan, attach the required documents.
- You will receive a token number and a ticket—note it down or download it.
- Pay the dakshina only after the mandir confirms. The mandir will never ask for your UPI PIN or OTP.

What to bring

- An ID card (Lalgola is a border area).
- A cloth or paper bag for offerings—no plastic.
- Water and an umbrella in summer; an umbrella and suitable footwear in the monsoon.

On festival days

- Arrive early, stand in the queue and follow the volunteers’ instructions.
- Keep children and elders with you, and carry few valuables.
